24 July 2010

This artist book references 1199 contributions to Twitter made during the last two years of my PhD research at Leeds Metropolitan University. The content takes place between 8 July 2008 & 8 July 2010. The primary recording tool used to do this was an iPhone, which additionally enabled me to instantly record my geo-location and upload images that referenced the individual situations.

I called the project and phone Cultural Probe. It was a lifelogging experiment that provided an overview of the intermingled aspects of my practice, research and life. Cultural Probe importantly became a referencing system for the methodology of my practice, which used social media to both make new work and to archive my research and art practice. While this collection of micro posts provides a sample of my activity, more thorough extensions of the posts can be found by following the hyperlinks to my blog, Flickr & Delicious accounts and various other websites cited within.

I have tried to provide a visual summary that focuses on the activities I have undertaken in the last two years and therefore have not included corresponding images for each hyperlink published within this book. The layout of the data refers to the current system of receiving information via the screen in a layered manner that is promoting a new form of reading and forcing onscreen multitasking. The cover references 647 days 18 hours of geotagging my location, another visualization of this data can be found on page 11. At the time of printing all the hyperlinks were accurate, the websites sourced for screen grabs and the entire collection of images were present online. Images included can be found by following the links on the same page. On occasion I have taken screen grabs of websites and YouTube videos in which I have featured. Links to these images are also found on the same page. On the rare occasion that I have used images from fellow researchers hyperlinks to the photographers are provided at the base of the image.

TWITTER/ART

Press Release

Twitter/Art+Social Media

April 1 - May 1, 2010

Reception Thursday April 1, 2010

Diane Farris Gallery is pleased to present Twitter/Art+Social Media, a juried exhibition of digital art. The exhibition concept evolved from a desire to explore the Internet as a vehicle for artistic expression. Johnson, Preview reviewer, the Internet as a vehicle for company, Kits Media, been since 2004.

As an early adopter of the Internet, the gallery has been interested in its possibilities. The gallery website in 1996, which was the first population was online. Through the gallery examines how social media has changed the way artists who use it to share their work and organize shows and produce art.

With 80 - 100 artworks by artists from around the world and abroad, Twitter/Art+Social Media is a wide spectrum of influences of social media on their subject matter or medium. The exhibition is working in more traditional ways to promote and display their work. It brings together works as digital art, video and sound to show how social media has changed the way we communicate.

The exhibition will be accompanied by a series of events.

From my window I can see into our polling station.
People are voting in Armley... even in the rain.

We are giving you the 11:11 to recode Karsten's work and create your own original artwork. If you can download and interact directly with the source code, but you do not need to be an expert coder, as Karsten has also designed a graphical user interface. Subject: 15.2.10 Continuum short list

Hello Megan

Thank you for your submission to the Continuum commission. The commissioners have now reviewed all applications and we are pleased to inform you that your proposal has been shortlisted.

As you know the Continuum Commission Advisory Selection Panel is meeting on 24 February to consider all shortlisted applications for commissioning, and you were asked to keep the date free to feed in. Hello Continuum panel. Thank you for your time.

You can do this in person by attending at Rivington Place, London EC2A 3BA or be informed of the time shortly. Please let us know who will be attending, so we can make provision for the appropriate seating. If you are attending in person, please take a seat in the lobby of Rivington and bring you to the panel meeting.

The nearest tube stations are Old Street and Farringdon. Here is a map link.
<http://www.rivingtonplace.org/pages/map>

The names of the panel members and observers and scribes.

Your attendance at the discussion is a dialogue with you about the project and ask further questions. It is not a pitching session. The panel has thoroughly reviewed your application and all supporting materials and have the following questions:
@willdocherty are you down there with the artimelt group too?

Q: The Panel has noted that this project matches the brief but believes there may be substantial additional costs within the execution of the project that are not represented in the budget. Could you please come prepare to speak to this issue and if true, tell panel how do you intend to manage/provide for such costs?

Q: Could you please confirm if funds were provided by the London Knowledge Lab for this project and has the 2010 showcase already taken place?

I think Mel Lastman's blog may have been hacked. At least I hope so. <http://bit.ly/cv4572> (via @dylanreibling) OMG!!!

Physical Space Tweets

Amsterdam Biennale, Mediamatic - ESA Leeds Pavilion - 16 October 2009 - 3 January 2010
megansmith.ca

The piece pulls an information feed from Twitter's geocode API. Using the open source Arduino electronic platform, the internet, and an LCD screen these small devices visually chirp content and technology into a new space interaction occurs. The screen and hardware and distribute life feeds. They are physical messengers for a passing audience and in the instance of the Biennale chronicled a cities social Watching the stream at different times of the day or week renders a picture of Leeds' community and activity. There is a clear distinction between the stream and the physical space. The stream may be announcing a new job call or a Friday and Saturday nights when Leeds is engaging drama documenting the happenings across the city from the Corn Exchange to a mad rush to a secret gig at the Brudenell. By removing the peripheral of the computer and the profile windows as a physical space, the stream is providing a focus on the city's life.

The flyer is divided into two main sections. The top section, titled 'Our City, Our Music', features a map of Leeds and text about a GPS-based musical map. The bottom section, titled 'The Tour', lists the dates 'Sunday 21st June 11am-4pm' and 'Wednesday 24th June 14:00-17:00'. It includes a list of musicians and bands, a 'Free' badge, and contact information for the Leeds Met Students' Union. Logos for 'nti', 'leeds met students' union', 'mscape', and 'leeds metropolitan university' are at the bottom.

The contemporary digital experience of multiple locations, cultures and spatial technologies of mobile internet, mashups and virtual world participation among these networked spaces enables a placemaking. The act of labelling or branding 'what is' is the activity of decorating a notebook with rock stars and stickers. These intentions with the object through an expression in digital spaces like MySpace and Facebook GIFs, automated music players and pages. What is different though is that identity branding is no longer tied to within the geographical parameters of everyday meanderings. The situation of the placemaking across a vast geographic and with an extending phantom limb in the holder.

No free Internet at Manchester Airport. Boo. But man the food courts are great now.

Wed Feb 04 09:07:11 +0000 2009

@chrewinc yeah in my heart of hearts. But my brain says 'you were freezing your @$$ last time. BRING MORE CLOTHES!'.

Wed Feb 04 05:45:02 +0000 2009

Start 4:30 home Armley. Currently awaiting train to Manchester airport, at Leeds Station.

the big suitcase or the carry-on? How much will I be bringing back?

Tue Feb 03 19:54:23 +0000 2009

packing again!

Tue Feb 03 19:52:35 +0000 2009

bummer, bumped out to the queue at 20 seconds until complete. 54 fonts in the queue now. maybe come back later. <http://www.yourfonts.com>

Tue Feb 03 14:36:26 +0000 2009

i'm made the queue. In maybe 24 minutes from now I will have my own digital font based on my handwriting. i think it's cool.

Tue Feb 03 14:16:17 +0000 2009

oooh the queue is dropping quickly! (no.13 now) Who is in the race with me to upload your font to <http://www.yourfonts.com> ??

Tue Feb 03 14:09:23 +0000 2009

14 to 13 to 39 people in queue within 3 second refresh intervals at <http://www.yourfonts.com/upload.html>

Fri Jan 30 18:58:57 +0000 2009

@mday thanks. code is almost there, but putting it away for the moment. biggest problem is unreliable Terminal - Telnet connection.
Fri Jan 30 15:09:42 +0000 2009

thinks this expanding blue vein on my temple is being caused by my inability to figure out these sketches.
Fri Jan 30 13:22:41 +0000 2009

telnet, oh telnet, where are you?
Fri Jan 30 09:34:44 +0000 2009

@mday my libraries were in the wrong places. oops, that silly librarian.
Thu Jan 29 21:52:57 +0000 2009

@mday ok great, thanks for the help. what a day!
Thu Jan 29 17:04:23 +0000 2009

@mday i loaded botanics sketch 2 have a look and now I can't get it to stop saying 'moist:310' on all new sketches, idea how 2 clear cache?

Thu Jan 29 15:46:54 +0000 2009

@mday yes please. I'm getting kinda frustrated.

Thu Jan 29 15:31:25 +0000 2009

not there yet.

Thu Jan 29 15:11:34 +0000 2009

got the arduino talking to the internet, and the internet talking to the arduino, now to get the arduino to talk to twitter.
